Practice Profile

Brian has a broad practice in both civil and criminal matters. His practice covers trial and appellate advocacy and advisory work. He is equally comfortable with conducting cases in Chinese or English.

In his criminal practice, Brian has advised and defended a wide spectrum of clients, including business proprietors, corporations, doctors, bankers, civil servants (including police officers, immigration officers and Customs & Excise officers), insurance agents, school teachers/tutors, professional drivers, students/juvenile and foreign nationals who are faced with criminal allegations ranging from commercial crimes and trafficking in dangerous drugs to shop theft and traffic summonses. Brian is regularly instructed in cases which are more complex and lengthier in nature. Additionally, Brian also has experience in handling criminal proceedings arising from family/matrimonial disputes.

Drawing upon the breadth of his expertise, Brian fully understands the ramifications of a criminal conviction to all those he represents and the emotional stress and pressure they are experiencing. He is committed to pursuing his clients' best interests and always strives to achieve the best possible outcome for his clients whether at investigation stage, trials, mitigations or appeals.

On the civil side, Brian has experience in commercial disputes, company & shareholders' disputes, injunctive reliefs, enforcement of foreign judgments, land and tenancy disputes, commercial fraud and civil contempt. Brian's experience in criminal cases renders him particularly capable of advising and representing clients in civil cases with criminal or regulatory elements which call for a multi-disciplinary approach.

Brian is regularly engaged at pre-action/investigation stage, trials and appeals in various levels of court. Brian's instructions are predominantly privately funded.
