Practice Profile

Philip studied English Language & Literature at Lincoln College, Oxford but decided to become a barrister in 1975, his last year at university. He joined Lincoln's Inn and was called to the Bar in 1977. After pupillage in Manchester, he joined chambers there and practised on the Northern Circuit for seven years. He had a general common law practice.

In 1985 Philip joined the Attorney General's Chambers in Hong Kong as a Crown Counsel. After a spell as a prosecutor he moved to the Legal Policy Division, which served the Solicitor General and Attorney General.

In 1989 Philip was appointed an Assistant Solicitor General with special responsibilities for producing a Bill of Rights. In the next two years Philip worked with the drafting team that eventually produced the Hong Kong Bill of Rights Ordinance. He also advised policy branches and government departments on the likely impact of the new law.

He was for a time part of the Hong Kong government contingent on the British side in the Sino-British Joint Liaison Group. He was also a member of the United Kingdom delegation reporting to the United Nations Human Rights Committee in 1991 on the implementation of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights as it applied to Hong Kong.

Philip left government service at the end of 1991 and went into private practice. He was one of the last barristers to be appointed Queen's Counsel in 1997. He served on the Bar Council for many years and became its Chairman in 2005 and served for 2 years. He was elected Chairman for the third time in January 2018 and the fourth time in January 2019.

Philip has developed a practice in constitutional and administrative law. He has appeared for both applicants and respondents in judicial review proceedings, including cases before the Privy Council before 1997 and the Court of Final Appeal after then. Philip has an established practice in immigration law, appearing first for Vietnamese refugees and asylum seekers in the early 1990's and then later for Mainlanders seeking to establish their status as permanent residents under the Basic Law. More recently he has been involved in several cases concerning persons who have claimed protection against refoulement under the United Nations Convention Against Torture.

Philip has appeared in cases concerning mutual legal assistance, including extradition matters. He has also handled election cases ranging from petition cases to constitutional challenges on restrictions on voting and standing for election. Philip also undertakes disciplinary cases and other regulatory work. He appears occasionally in the Court of Appeal and Court of First Instance in criminal appeals.
