Practice Profile

Prior to reading Law, Cecilica obtained a degree in Communications and so is very approachable and able to connect with vulnerable and distressed clients. She appears regularly in the criminal courts both for the defence and prosecution.

She has developed a substantial criminal practice which includes cases of violent crimes, dishonesty, money laundering, drugs, traffic offences, as well as regulatory offences under the Securities and Futures Ordinance.

Additionally, she has a mixed civil practice and appears at trials and interlocutory hearings in the Court of First Instance and District Court. She also does advisory work. She has a particular interest in all aspects of criminal law, personal injury and land law.
